Advancing Excellence in Legal Education in Kenya

COUNCIL OF LEGAL EDUCATION

EDITORS NOTE

22ND EDITION

Welcome to this edition of the Council of Legal Education Newsletter.

This issue reflects the Council's continued commitment to advancing quality legal education and training through effective regulation, stakeholder engagement, institutional accountability, and continuous improvement. Across these pages, we highlight key milestones that demonstrate our unwavering dedication to promoting excellence, integrity, and professionalism within Kenya's legal education sector.

Among the highlights are the release of the April 2026 Advocates Training Programme examination results, quality assurance inspections and audits undertaken at legal education institutions, the launch of the Tharaka University School of Law, and the successful conclusion of the Council's compliance audit. These activities reaffirm the Council's statutory mandate to regulate, license, and supervise legal education and training while fostering collaboration with stakeholders across the justice sector.

This edition also showcases initiatives aimed at strengthening institutional governance, enhancing service delivery, promoting sustainable public sector practices, and supporting aspiring advocates through the Bar Examination Loan programme. Together, these efforts reflect the Council's commitment to transparency, innovation, and continuous institutional improvement.

CLE remains grateful to Council Members, Management, staff, legal education providers and all stakeholders whose collaboration continues to strengthen legal education and training in Kenya.

Release of the April 2026 ATP Examination Results

By Corporate Communication

The Council of Legal Education released the results of the April 2026 Advocates Training Programme (ATP) examinations, marking the culmination of a rigorous examination process conducted from 9 to 21 April 2026 across three examination centres in Nairobi County.

In preparation for the examination series, the Council strengthened stakeholder engagement by holding a consultative meeting with the Kenya School of Law in January, followed by a candidate engagement webinar in April. These initiatives formed part of the Council's ongoing efforts to enhance communication and support candidates throughout the examination process.

A total of 2,048 candidates registered for the April 2026 ATP examinations. Following the deferment of 48 candidates within the prescribed timelines, 2,000 candidates sat the examinations.

The Council remains committed to administering credible, fair, and transparent examinations while continuously enhancing the quality and integrity of legal education and training in Kenya.

CLE Chairperson Prof. Collins Odote Attends Launch of Tharaka University School of Law

By Corporate Communication

Prof. Collins Odote in black suit during the launch

The Chairperson of the Council of Legal Education, Prof. Collins Odote, attended the official launch of the Tharaka University School of Law, marking a significant milestone in the expansion of legal education in Kenya.

The event brought together distinguished leaders from the legal profession, academia, and the justice sector, including Law Society of Kenya President, Senior Counsel Charles Kanjama, and Court of Appeal Judge, Justice Brown Murungi Kairari.

The launch underscored the shared commitment of key stakeholders to advancing quality legal education and strengthening the legal profession.

As the statutory regulator of legal education and training in Kenya, the Council of Legal Education remains committed to its mandate under the Legal Education Act, Cap. 16B, to regulate, supervise, and license legal education and training while promoting excellence across the sector.

Quality Assurance Inspection Conducted at Africa Nazarene University (ANU) School of Law

CLE Team and ANU Team after the inspection

The Council of Legal Education conducted an on-site inspection of the Africa Nazarene University (ANU) School of Law as part of the process to assess the University's application for renewal of its training licence for the Bachelor of Laws (LL.B) programme.

The inspection was led by Mr. George Nyakundi, Chairperson of the Quality Assurance, Compliance and Licensing (QCL) Committee, alongside Ms. Aisha Abdallah, Committee Member, Prof. Jack Mwimali, Secretary/Chief Executive Officer, and officers from the Directorate of Standards, Licensing, Supervision and Compliance.

The assessment evaluated key areas including governance, curriculum delivery, staffing, research, library resources, infrastructure, student support services, and quality assurance mechanisms to determine compliance with the Legal Education Act, Cap. 16B and the Legal Education (Accreditation and Quality Assurance) Regulations, 2016.

The University delegation was led by Prof. Simon Obwatho, Deputy Vice Chancellor (Academic and Student Affairs), Prof. Loise Musikali, Dean, School of Law, Mr. Juliana Njiriri, Chairperson of the School of Law, and other university officials.

CLE Advances Green Procurement Through ICT Equipment Disposal By Timothy Seurey

In line with its commitment to sustainable procurement and environmentally responsible asset management, the Council of Legal Education (CLE) identified and earmarked obsolete and unserviceable ICT equipment for disposal, in compliance with the Public Procurement and Asset Disposal Act, 2015 (PPADA) and the Public Procurement and Asset Disposal Regulations, 2020 (PPADR).

The identified equipment was handed over to the ICT Authority's (ICTA) E-Waste Management Facility. This forms part of the national e-Waste Kenya Project, a collaborative initiative between ICTA, the National Environment Management Authority (NEMA), and the Public Procurement Regulatory Authority (PPRA), established to give effect to disposal committee requirements and the annual asset disposal planning obligations that apply to unserviceable, surplus, or obsolete items held by procuring entities.

At the facility, CLE's obsolete devices will undergo environmentally sound testing, dismantling, and refurbishment. Devices restored to working condition will support Digital Village Smart Hubs and related digital-device refurbishment, repair, and reuse initiatives that extend the working life of ICT equipment for learning institutions across the country, while hazardous components are safely processed to support job creation and a greener digital economy.

Through this approach, CLE reinforces its commitment to responsible consumption and production, advancing sustainable procurement practice across government while meeting its statutory disposal obligations in full.

CLE Concludes Compliance Audit for FY 2025/2026

By Corporate Communication

CLE successfully concluded the Compliance Audit for the Financial Year 2025/2026 following a close-out meeting with the Office of the Auditor-General, Kenya (OAG). The audit forms part of the Office of the Auditor-General's constitutional mandate to assess public institutions' compliance with applicable laws, regulations, policies, and established governance frameworks.

The meeting was led by the Secretary/Chief Executive Officer, Prof. Jack Mwimali, who was accompanied by members of the Council's Management Team. The Office of the Auditor-General delegation was led by Ms. Sophia Wadulo, Deputy Director, alongside Mr. Samuel Mathenge, Principal Auditor, and other audit officers.

The compliance audit evaluated CLE's adherence to legal and regulatory requirements, internal policies, and governance standards, reinforcing the importance of accountability, transparency, and sound public sector management.

Speaking during the meeting, Prof. Mwimali underscored the value of the in promoting institutional excellence. He noted that compliance audits provide an opportunity for the Council to identify areas for improvement, strengthen internal systems, and enhance service delivery to stakeholders. "The audit process is an important mechanism for continuous institutional improvement. It enables us to strengthen our governance structures, improve operational efficiency, and reinforce our commitment to accountability and excellence in service delivery", he said.

The Office of the Auditor-General commended the Council for its cooperation and openness throughout the audit exercise, noting that the process was conducted smoothly and without any challenges.

Quality Assurance Audit Conducted at Moi University School of Law

By Corporate Communication

Maintaining high standards in legal education requires continuous assessment and collaboration between regulators and institutions. In line with this commitment, a quality assurance audit was conducted at the Moi University School of Law in Eldoret to evaluate the institution's compliance with the standards governing legal education and training in Kenya.

The audit was led by Ms. Annah Konuche, Director of Standards, Licensing, Supervision and Compliance at the Council of Legal Education (CLE), together with officers from the Directorate, as part of the Council's statutory mandate under the Legal Education Act, Cap. 16B.

The comprehensive assessment examined key areas that underpin the delivery of quality legal education, including the curriculum, governance structures, institutional capacity, physical infrastructure, staffing levels, and library resources. The exercise was undertaken in accordance with the Legal Education (Accreditation and Quality Assurance) Regulations, 2016, which provide the benchmark for accreditation and quality assurance of legal education providers. The audit team was received by the Acting Vice-Chancellor of Moi University, Prof. Kiplagat Kotut, who reaffirmed the University's commitment to continuous improvement and the provision of quality legal education.

Quality assurance audits play a vital role in strengthening legal education by promoting compliance with established standards, enhancing institutional accountability, and encouraging continuous improvement. They also provide an opportunity for constructive engagement between the Council and legal education providers in advancing excellence across the sector.

Through such assessments, the Council of Legal Education continues to fulfil its mandate of regulating legal education and training in Kenya, ensuring that institutions deliver programmes that produce competent, ethical, and practice-ready legal professionals.

Repay Your BEL Loan, Empower Another Candidate

By Corporate Communication

Since its establishment in 2019, the Bar Examination Loan (BEL) has enabled 2,148 Advocates Training Programme (ATP) candidates to pursue their dream of joining the legal profession.

For many beneficiaries, the loan has represented far more than financial assistance. It has been a lifeline—bridging the gap between financial hardship and the opportunity to sit for the Bar Examination. Behind every successful application is a story of resilience, determination, and an unwavering commitment to becoming an advocate.

The Bar Examination Loan continues to help expand access to legal education by ensuring deserving candidates can sit their exams despite financial constraints. Through this initiative, aspiring advocates can take the next step in their professional journey while contributing to a more inclusive legal profession.

As more candidates seek support each year, the programme's sustainability depends on beneficiaries' timely repayment of loans. Every repayment replenishes the fund, enabling another deserving candidate to access financial support and pursue their aspiration to be admitted to the Bar.

CLE encourages all Bar Examination Loan beneficiaries to honour their repayment obligations and, in doing so, invest in the future of legal education in Kenya. Every loan repaid creates an opportunity for another aspiring advocate to realise their dream.

Loan repayments can be made conveniently through;

- USSD Code *642#
- HELB Mobile App
- Loanee Self-Service Portal
- Employers Portal, and
- For beneficiaries in the diaspora, through Wave, WorldRemit, or direct bank deposit.

CLE Invites Expressions of Interest for Service Providers for FY 2026/2027

By Human Resource Division

The Council of Legal Education has commenced the recruitment of service providers for the 2026/2027 Financial Year through an Expression of Interest (EOI), reaffirming its commitment to upholding quality, integrity, and professionalism in the delivery of legal education and the administration of the Advocates Training Programme (ATP).

The exercise seeks to establish a pool of qualified and experienced professionals to support the Council in key functional areas, including ATP Examination Invigilators, Trainers and Facilitators, Examination Setters, Moderators of Examination Questions and Scripts, as well as Markers and Re-Markers.

These service providers are integral to the Council's mandate of regulating legal education and training in Kenya. Their expertise supports the development, administration, moderation, and assessment of examinations, ensuring that the Council continues to maintain high standards of fairness, transparency, and academic excellence.

To enhance accessibility and efficiency, the Council adopted a fully digital application process, requiring applicants to submit supporting documents electronically and complete an online application form. The application window remains open until 21 July 2026, providing eligible professionals with an opportunity to contribute to the advancement of legal education and training in Kenya.

Through this recruitment exercise, the Council continues to strengthen its institutional capacity by engaging competent professionals whose knowledge and experience will support the delivery of credible examination processes and quality legal education. This initiative reflects CLE's ongoing commitment to excellence, accountability, and continuous improvement in serving the legal education sector and the public.

CLE Commemorates Africa Public Service Day 2026

By Corporate Communication

The Council of Legal Education (CLE) joined public institutions across the continent in commemorating Africa Public Service Day 2026, an annual celebration that recognises the critical role of the public service in advancing good governance, delivering quality services, and promoting sustainable development.

The commemoration provided an opportunity to reaffirm the Council's commitment to serving the public through the effective regulation, licensing, and supervision of legal education and training in Kenya, in accordance with its mandate under the Legal Education Act, Cap. 16B.

As a State Corporation, CLE remains dedicated to ensuring that legal education institutions meet established standards of quality and compliance while fostering excellence in legal training. Through its regulatory, quality assurance, and accreditation functions, the Council continues to strengthen legal education and contribute to the development of a competent and ethical legal profession.

The occasion also underscored the Council's unwavering commitment to the National Values and Principles of Governance enshrined in the Constitution of Kenya. In executing its mandate, CLE continues to uphold the principles of integrity, accountability, transparency, professionalism, inclusivity, and excellence in public service.

As the public service continues to evolve to meet the changing needs of citizens, the Council remains focused on enhancing service delivery, embracing innovation, and strengthening stakeholder engagement in pursuit of its vision of promoting quality legal education and training for the administration of justice and the rule of law in Kenya.

CLE Conducts On-Site Inspection at the University of Nairobi Faculty of Law

By Corporate Communication

CLE Team and UON Team during the inspection

CLE conducted an on-site inspection of the University of Nairobi Faculty of Law as part of its Quality Assurance, Compliance and Licensing (QCL) framework to promote excellence in legal education and training.

The inspection was led by Mr. George Nyakundi, Chairperson of the QCL Committee, together with Committee Members, the Secretary/Chief Executive Officer Prof. Jack Mwimali, and officers from the Directorate of Standards, Licensing, Supervision and Compliance. The visit followed earlier quality assurance audits at the Faculty's Parklands and Kisumu campuses.

During the engagement, Mr. Nyakundi underscored the importance of collaboration between regulators and institutions in advancing quality legal education and producing ethical, competent, and practice-ready legal professionals.

UoN delegation, led by Prof. John D. Mande, Deputy Vice Chancellor (Academic Affairs), reaffirmed the University's commitment to delivering high-quality legal education that meets the evolving needs of the legal profession.

The inspection reviewed key areas including curriculum, governance, staffing, student support services, research, library resources, infrastructure, and experiential learning, while also exploring innovations and technology integration in legal education.

Revised Gazettement Timelines: Enhancing Flexibility and Inclusion

By Peter Kipyegon

Council has revised the gazettelement timelines to allow the inclusion of more qualified candidates in the final gazettelement lists. The revised timelines provide greater flexibility, enabling more eligible candidates to be accommodated while maintaining the integrity of the gazettelement process.

This improvement has been warmly welcomed by stakeholders, who had expressed concerns that the previous timelines were too restrictive. By addressing these concerns, Council has made the process more responsive, efficient and inclusive, ensuring that deserving candidates are not excluded due to rigid timelines.

Continuous Improvement: Strengthening the Council's Image

The revised gazettelement timelines are a practical example of Council's commitment to continuous improvement. Under Strategic Objective 3.2 of the Council's 2023–2027 Strategic Plan—Enhancing CLE's Corporate Image and Brand—the Council is focused on improving service delivery while strengthening its institutional image.

This commitment is reinforced through the implementation of the ISO 9001:2015 Quality Management System (QMS), particularly Clause 10.3 on continual improvement. The standard encourages organizations to regularly evaluate their processes, respond to stakeholder feedback and implement improvements that enhance efficiency, effectiveness and customer satisfaction.

By reviewing and refining the gazettelement process, Council has demonstrated its willingness to listen to stakeholders and embrace meaningful change. Such improvements not only enhance service delivery but also build public confidence, reinforce transparency and strengthen Council's reputation as a responsive and quality-driven institution.

Council of Legal Education Holds Annual Staff Sensitization Forum

The Council of Legal Education successfully conducted its Annual Staff Sensitization Forum from 24th to 26th June 2026 in Machakos, bringing together staff for a three-day programme focused on strengthening institutional capacity, governance, and service delivery.

Officially opened by the Secretary/CEO, Prof. Busalile Jack Mwimali, the forum featured sessions on the Legal Education Regulations, Risk Management, Performance Management, Communication Policy and Strategy, National Values and Principles of Governance, Cybersecurity, Customer Service, Records Management, ISO 9001:2015, Staff Welfare, and E-Government Procurement, among other key institutional topics.

The forum reaffirmed CLE's commitment to continuous staff development, good governance, and building a high-performing workforce to enhance the regulation, licensing, and supervision of legal education and training in Kenya.

CLE Holds Council Retreat to Strengthen Governance and Strategic Oversight

CLE Council members and staff during the retreat

CLE successfully held a five-day Council Retreat from 15th to 19th June 2026 at Lake Naivasha Crescent Hotel, bringing together Council Members and Management to deliberate on strategic, policy, and governance matters aimed at strengthening the regulation of legal education in Kenya.

Officially opened by the Chairperson of the Council, Prof. Collins Odote, and the Secretary/Chief Executive Officer, Prof. Busalile Jack Mwimali, the retreat provided a platform for reviewing institutional performance, strengthening governance, and charting the Council's strategic direction.

Key discussions focused on public procurement, the implementation of Electronic Government Procurement (e-GP), the Strategic Plan half-year performance report, human resource matters, and the Council's communication and social media performance. Members also reviewed reports on promotion criteria, job descriptions, and the proposed salary structure to enhance institutional effectiveness.

The retreat further provided an opportunity for in-depth deliberations on the Legal Education (Quality Assurance and Accreditation) Regulations, 2026 and the Legal Education (Advocates Training Programme) Regulations, 2026, with presentations led by the Directorate of Standards, Licensing, Supervision and Compliance and the Directorate of Examinations. The sessions reaffirmed the Council's commitment to strengthening the legal and regulatory framework governing legal education and professional training in Kenya.

The retreat concluded with closing remarks by the Council Chairperson reaffirming CLE's commitment to sound governance, institutional excellence, and the continuous improvement of legal education and training.

Life

Father's Day

The lies CEOs no longer believe about fatherhood

Getting the job done. Spotting the right talent. Spurring the shareholders. There are things that one knows in leadership—who knows how?—like a shadow passing through your cells. Fatherhood resists all this. You make it up as you go. You submit yourself to it, bend the knee, and kiss the ring. That's what the BDLife discovered after ringing up a few executives seeking to find out what frightened them most about fatherhood, about being fathers.

Because, unlike running a company, where if you stick to the equations, that a-often-leads-to-b, fatherhood demands you rip the how-to guide, submerge yourself in the water, and find out how much of an amphibian you could be. "Despite my success as a parent," one executive reflected, "my children can still end up failing." It's the absurdity of being a dad—like racing west as the sun goes down to make the day longer.

PROFILE
ASHIOYA

Prof Busalile Jack Mwimali
Secretary and CEO of the Council of Legal Education
Father of two

I planned to be a father. We got our first-born nine months after our wedding. I have a 16-year-old son and a 10-year-old daughter.

My fear as a parent is what will drive my children to work hard and desire something. When we were growing up, there were so many things that we dreamt of because of the poverty in the society at that time. We worked hard on the premise that if we work hard, get a good job, a good car, and buy a nice house, but our children have grown up seeing those things we dreamt of. So what will motivate them?

I hope my children never have to forgive me for not giving them the future they deserve. The Bible says a wise man leaves a bequest for his children and his children's children.

There is that fear that everything I've worked for will be lost in one generation. I hope my children will be responsible enough to take care of their children.

Maybe I've not modeled it well enough for them. Unfortunately, in this generation, we work so hard to provide for them that we forget to be there.

You will not find this in a parenting book. Every child is different from the others. These books say that parenting would be the same, that whatever you use on Son A will work on Son B. That is not true; each son comes out differently and needs to be parented differently.

It's much more acute when you have a son and daughter with different personalities and expectations.

When I get so angry and before I punish them, I remember that I was exactly like that.

Childhood passes in a blur. They grow up so fast. Unfortunately, I stay away from my children because they are in Dar es Salaam and I am in Nairobi, and every time I get to meet them, I find they have grown faster than I anticipated. Now that my son is a teenager, we open up and have man-to-man talks. I tell him the realities of life: sometimes, even if you are treated wrongly, you don't have to take revenge. But I realized that these are actually individuals, and they need to learn how to live their own lives. I will not be there as a parent to carry them through every circumstance and situation because the world will not always be fair to them.

Being present for my children means the world, especially for the girl. It is one of the things that haunts me, my absence in their lives as they pass through most stages in life. I tell myself that my heart is in the right place. I will do everything for them to succeed in life. And I tell myself, as long as I have committed them first of all to God, who is a better father than I am, then they are in good hands.

My fatherhood weakness is that I let my daughter get away with a lot. She is a good shopper. She goes in and picks her stuff, and she loves the best things in life; you can't always tell her no, she might even bankrupt me (chuckles). Sometimes I sympathise with the man my daughter will date (chuckles).

This Father's Day, I'll be in church. My responsibility is just to commit my children to God, to ensure He will take care of them, irrespective of their situations and circumstances in life.

When my children wear my shoes, I hope they understand that everybody in society, including themselves, needs to carry their own burden and be responsible. They need to be their own person. I say this because, despite my failure as a parent, I want them to know that they can succeed. And despite my success as a parent, they can also fail if they do not take care.

When my children describe me, I hope they say that he did the best he could for us.

Am I the kind of son my children would be proud of? It's a difficult one. I was very naughty. In fact, sometimes when my children behave the way I did as a young man,

June by Peter Kipyegon

June slips in without announcing itself—
just longer evenings,
coffee that turns to iced coffee,
and calendars that suddenly fill with plans.

The trees wear their brightest green, children chase the last light home,
and strangers linger a little longer beneath skies that refuse to grow dark.

There is something hopeful about June,
not because everything is perfect, but because it reminds us that growth is often quiet.

We carry unfinished dreams,
half-written stories,
and promises to ourselves,
trusting the season to make room for them.

June is not about rushing ahead.
It is about opening the windows,
breathing deeply,
and believing there is still time for joy, for change and for new beginnings.
